Graduate Student Visiting Fellows Application form

The Center regularly hosts visiting graduate students from around the world. The Center does not provide financial support to visiting students. But we do offer a lively and stimulating intellectual environment. Visiting students often visit graduate seminar courses, including courses taught by faculty in the Philosophy Department, Program of History of Science Technology, and Medicine, and other departments and programs. Visitors are welcomed and encouraged to participate in Center activities including the discussion groups, weekly colloquium lectures, and special events. The University of Minnesota has a number of strengths in the sciences and in areas relevant to science and technology studies. Visitors are encouraged to explore the activities of research groups throughout the University.
